What We Think You Should Know...

About Transportation:

The movement of wheat to market is a crucial part of the market process. If we cannot move the world's best wheat to our global markets, the quality makes no difference.

The Issues:

- There are many different parts of the process, from trucks moving grain from field to terminal, trains moving it to port, and ships moving it to foreign markets. Along the way are a series of logistics ranging from level crossings, bridges and tunnels, track and port capacity. When one part of the system breaks down, it impacts the entire system.

Our Position:

- Receiving Royal Assent in May 2018, Bill C-49 brought changes and introduced processes of how all wheat growers could hold the railways accountable for the movement of their grain. We support this action.
